This extension to file and pay taxes does not apply to sales and other type of taxes. However, taxpayers with disaster-related delays that are seeking filing extensions or that have been assessed penalties for taxes other than income may contact the DOR to request an extension or a waiver of penalties. The Kentucky tax extensions offered allow affected taxpayers until January 31, 2018 to file Kentucky tax returns and submit tax payments for the following taxes: individual income tax, corporate income tax, and income tax withholding. Kentucky's tax extension includes the September 15 and October 15 due dates for estimated taxes and calendar-year business returns. Late filing and payment penalties will be waived for those affected taxpayers seeking this relief. Kentucky's tax laws have no provision for the waiver of interest. Taxpayers are advised to label the top margin of the tax forms filed under this relief provision in large red letters with the words "Hurricane Harvey," "Hurricane Irma," or other IRS recognized disaster.	Yes

Taxpayers who reside in the counties designated as federally declared disaster areas have until January 31, 2018 to file individual income, corporate income and pass-through entity tax returns due on or after August 23, 2017, for Hurricane Harvey and September 4, 2017, for Hurricane Irma and before January 31, 2018. The Department of Revenue automatically provides interest and penalty relief on original or extended filing and payment due dates, including extended filing or payment due dates, that fall within the postponed period. Therefore, taxpayers residing in affected counties do not need to contact the Department to get this relief. This relief does not provide an extension for payments on prior liabilities.  Any disaster area taxpayer who receives a penalty notice should contact our office at (601) 923- 7700 to receive abatement. In addition, we will work with any taxpayer who resides elsewhere but whose books, records or tax professional are located in the disaster areas.	Yes

New Jersey	News Release: http://www.state.nj.us/treasury/taxation/hurricaneharvey.shtml	11-Sep-17	New Jersey has granted an extension of filing and payment deadlines for business and individual taxpayers affected by Hurricane Harvey. The new filing deadline is January 31, 2018, for businesses and individuals located in the disaster areas, those whose records are stored in the disaster areas, and relief workers.  The deadline extension applies to Sales Tax, Corporation Business Tax, Gross Income Tax and other taxes that have deadlines for filing that fall between August 23, 2017 and January 31, 2018. This includes any quarterly estimated payments due between the August 23, 2017, and Jan. 16, 2018. For individual tax filers, it also includes 2016 income tax returns that received a tax-filing extension until Oct. 16, 2017. However, because tax payments related to these 2016 returns were originally due on April 18, 2017, these payments will be considered late and are subject to penalties and interest. New Jersey is following federal Internal Revenue Service guidelines on deadline extensions. If the IRS changes its deadline, New Jersey expects to revise its requirements as well. New York	Statements to practitioners	15-Sep-17	"Tax Department officials have indicated that they do not have the authority to extend filing deadlines for disasters outside of the state. Nevertheless, the Department has the authority to abate late-filing and late-payment penalties for reasonable cause. The tax regulations (20 NYCRR §2392.1) provide examples of reasonable cause for penalty abatement that include destruction of records and inability to timely assemble information, as well as a catch-all provision for "any other ground for delinquency" that indicates a "reasonable cause for delay" and an "absence of willful neglect." Thus, taxpayers who might file a 2016 return late because their records are in an affected area or they are otherwise impacted by one of the hurricanes can protest any late-filing or late-payment penalties imposed by New York, using one of the grounds for reasonable cause noted above. Taxpayers might also consider using New York's voluntary disclosure program to avoid penalties for a late-filed return." - http://www.hodgsonruss.com/newsroom-publications-9876.html

Taxpayers are instructed to send a letter requesting the relief and explaining their circumstances to the following address: Rhode Island Division of Taxation, "Hurricane: XXXXX Tax Relief," One Capitol Hill Providence, R.I. 02908. In place of the "XXXXX" in the aforementioned address, the individual or business should write the tax type. For example, "Hurricane: Personal Income Tax Relief," or "Hurricane: Corporate Tax Relief." Please note that even if a taxpayer directly impacted by one of the recent natural disasters is approved for an extension, it is only an extension for filing, not for paying; payments are still due on the usual deadline.
